As it was outlined before, the endo : exo diastereoselections achieved in the preparation of proline derivatives 4 6 Scheme 2 are clearly dependant on the metal employed as cocatalyst. Usually triarylamines, triarylimidazoles and N -oxyl radicals [62] are employed as these electroauxiliary species. normally performed with lower catalyst loadings and shorter reaction times than those required for organocatalysed processes. General procedure for oxidation–Michael addition reactions.

This single criticism is that the volumes must be purchased individually. Gra
