Until about all male voices used some falsetto-type voice production in their upper range. Bel canto translated as "Different Voices singing," a 18th century operatic style noted for its brilliant display of vocal technique. A countertenor is able to sing even higher than a tenor.

My teacher said that my voice type is soprano, but as I haven't fully developed

Growing up, we even had a few girls singing tenor in my high school choir. I would really like to know my true vocal category. Great comment every detail included.

The bass voice has the lowest tessitura of all the voices. She can sing from C3 to F6! My singing teacher told me my vocal range is a D3 to an F7 which is apparently near the end of the piano.
